

Year 4 has had a wonderful half term and we have thoroughly enjoyed the topics covered across the curriculum. This half term we have looked at different methods for written multiplication and the children have decided which method helps them best. We have also recapped 2D shapes and discussed their lines of symmetry and other different ways they can be described. In literacy we have been reading Wolves in the Walls by Neil Gaiman and the children created some fantastic written work related to this.

The children have enjoyed continuing to learning about the Ancient Greeks and looking at states of matter in science. However our favourite thing this term has to be learning some amazing songs with Clair from the Durham music outreach team and had a fantastic time performing the songs at Durham Cathedral. It was an amazing opportunity!

Overall we have had a very fun and action packed half term and can't wait to see what is going to happen next half term!
