FGM information/Background

FGM – What is it?

FGM comprises of all procedures involving partial or total removal of the external female genital organs or any other injury to the female genital organs for non-medical reasons. FGM is most often carried out on young girls aged between infancy and 15 years of age. It is often referred to as 'cutting', 'female circumcision', 'initiation', 'Sunna' and 'infibulation'.

FGM in the UK

It is estimated that 65,000 girls aged 13 and under are at risk of FGM in the UK. UK communities most at risk include Kenyan, Somalian, Sudanese, Sierra Leone, Egyptian, Nigerian and Eritrean. Non-African countries that practice FGM include Yemen, Afghanistan, Kurdistan, Indonesia, Malaysia, Turkey, South Thailand and Pakistan. Please note this list is not exhaustive.

Spotting the signs of FGM

Suspicious may arise in a number of ways that a child may be at risk of FGM. These include:

- Knowing that a mother or older sibling has undergone FGM
- A girl talks about plans to have a 'special procedure' or to attend a special occasion/celebration to 'become a woman'
- A girl's parents state that they are a relative will take the child out of the country for a prolonged period or on school holidays
- A girl may talk about a long holiday to her country of origin or another country where the practice is present
- The girl is a member of the community that is less integrated into UK society and whose country of origin practices FGM

Signs that a child may have already undergone FGM

- Difficulty walking, sitting or standing
- Spending longer periods of time away from the classroom during the day with bladder or menstrual problems
- Prolonged or repeated absence from school or college
- A prolonged absence from school or college with personal or behaviour changes
- Reluctance to undergo normal medical examinations

- Asking for advice but not being explicit about the procedures due to embarrassment or fear

FGM is child abuse

FGM has been against the law in the UK since 1985 – it is a serious crime that carries a penalty of up to 14 years in prison. It is an offence to make arrangements for FGM to be undertaken within the UK or to take, plan to take a child out of the UK for the purpose of FGM.
