

IT'S LGBTQ+ HISTORY MONTH!

Educate yourself, be captivated by a great story and celebrate by reading a book written by an author or featuring characters who are LGBTQ+! If you're not sure where to start, check out the books on display in the library.

Read around your subject!

If you're studying Science try 'Inferior' by Angela Saini - Are women more nurturing than men? Are men more promiscuous than women? Can science give us an impartial answer to these questions?

Taking us on an eye-opening journey through science, 'Inferior' challenges our preconceptions about men and women, investigating the ferocious gender wars that burn in biology, psychology and anthropology.

If you're studying Politics or History try 'They Can't Kill Us All' by Wesley Lowery -

Washington Post journalist Wesley Lowery travelled across the US to uncover life inside the most heavily policed corners of America today. He conducted hundreds of interviews with the families of victims of police brutality, as well as with local activists, investigating the cumulative effect of decades of racially biased policing.

STUDENT BOOK REVIEWS! I Am Thunder - Muhammad Khan

'This book touches the heart - it covers topics such as religion, bullying, romance and terrorism. It makes the clear point that not everyone is simply 'bad' because of their background, and anyone is capable of rescuing someone in need. ★★★★★' - Esha Shantilal

Book of the Month

Aristotle and Dante Discover the Secrets of the Universe - Benjamin Alire Sáenz

'The problem with my life was that it was someone else's idea.' In El Paso, Texas, Aristotle is an angry teen with a brother in prison. Dante is a know-it-all who has an unusual way of looking at the world. When they meet at the swimming pool, they seem to have nothing in common. But as the two loners start spending time together, they discover that they share a special kind of friendship - the kind of friendship that changes lives and lasts a lifetime. And it is through their friendship that Ari and Dante will learn the most important truths about themselves - and about the kind of people they want to be.
